Dedication

The purpose of a dedication is to thank a teacher for all the things he has done for the school. Because he has guided us, worked with us, influenced us, and generously given his time for the good of each and every student at Rockport High, we dedicate the 1971 edition of "Rocks and Pebbles" to Mr. Franklin J. Nolan.

The R.H.S. Soccer Team climbed to new heights this year, having their first undefeated season. A Cape Ann Soccer League was formed and the Vikings had little trouble among the inexperienced teams.

It was in non-league games that the team's ability showed itself. Co-Captains Jack Thibeault and Dave Curtis were the nucleus of the team. Jack scored 23 goals for the season, 2 against Xavier, a team noted for its strength, and Dave exhibited excellent goal-tending. Forwards Stan Landergren and Bob Murray formed an irrepressible offense while halfbacks Pete Cross, Jim Hickey, and Tim Murphy were considered the most balanced line of the team.

The team gained experience in tournament play, in spite of being eliminated.

Next year, as the league grows more experienced, Coach Baker's Team will have to defend its title, and seems quite capable of doing so.

Teachers Win

On a cold and dreary day last November, the men teachers played the seniors in their annual touch football game. While the teachers usually win this affair, none would have predicted the outcome because the faculty had to contend with the senior's formidable revolving four-platoon offense-defense with nine iron men. The difference proved to be the strategy devised by Coach Trupiano, who after supervising the teacher's pregame elbow-bending exercises, advised the faculty quarterback to pass the ball to the guy who was wide open. This strategy completely befuddled the senior defense and the faculty went on to whelm the seniors by two touchdowns 12-2.

Beginning each game with a few encouraging words from Kathy Arnold "Let's go kucabombs" the undefeated girls field hockey team finished with 5 wins and 4 ties. As Debbie Dixon observes from a stretcher the ball goes past Betsy Murphy who didn't want to play anyway. Passing through the defense the ball approaches Joyce Kelley who faints from the excitement. It is now up to Lu Moulton who casually applies her Uncle Cheevers technique. Clearing to Barb Paradis who hollers "I'll drive." The ball is hit up the field past Mary Johnson who is helped by Jane Parrott in entertaining the fans with their latest jokes and gossip. At this point time out is called to organize a search for Nancy Parrott's bloomers. As the game recommences, Lorraine Platka drives a slap shot at Linda Murphy's mouth which she has mistaken for the goal. Though causing great confusion the ball is deflected from someone's stick into the goal as Betsy Baker makes it perfectly clear to all that it was her goal. As the game ends Chris Kolterjahn speaks her first words, "Did we win or tie?"

Class Prophecy

The year 1991, a year of important breakthroughs in underwater technology; some members of the class of 1971, I'm proud to say, are the pioneers of the first aquatic community. Famed biologist Peter Strisik and his faithful partner Bob Murray completed their study of living conditions in the sea and concluded, "Yeah, it's O.K."

I, being the elected party to get together a class reunion, caught the nearest submarine and started out to find my former classmates in the wide world of water. Cruising by, it didn't surprise me too much to see Steve Hanson sitting on the ocean floor . . . playing his guitar. Soon, I came face to face with Lois Cleveland who was just abouth crawling under the weight of a very large trunk. Being the nosy one I am, I stopped and inquired about her luggage. I got a reply which I should have guessed as soon as I saw her. "I don't like it underwater; I'm going to Chile!"

I hadn't seen the newly formed community before, so I took the opportunity to go on a tour, guided by Stanley Landergren, to see some of the buildings that were going up. The most noticeable of these was a tall building with life size figures of every animal from armadillo to zebra painted on it. The sign said, "Dupa's Veterinary" and I knew immediately that Elaine Gray was finally doing what she always dreamed of doing. Further along another sign caught my eye. It simply read "The Pool." Upon investigation, I discovered that it was a secretarial pool run by Elaine David. I asked if she knew the whereabouts of any classmates and she told me that Merianne Witham was an executive secretary at the Glenn Rowe Corporation and that Bonnie Reilly and Glenda Olson were presently employed by Fritz and George Enterprises, Jim Fritz and Don George co-founders. Moving right along, I caught a glimpse of Chriss Kren and Mike Sullivan doing nothing. Other places of business that I visited included "Rick's Market," owned by Rick Aspesi (I think Bernie Backstom was behind the meat counter). "Deb's Hairdressing Salon." Debbie Dixon proprietor. (that was Chris Barton demonstrating in front of the building), "The Ryan-Trafton Exercise Studio" . . . "work off up to twenty pounds in one week," "Eaton Cheeses," specializing in cream cheese and "The Edwards Clinic" run by Paula. It was for handicapped children who wanted to learn Japanese.

Well, the tour was fun, but I thought it about time to get to the middle of this underwater adventure and do some serious looking for the other members of the class of '71. I remembered that there were a few people interested in politics, so I started hunting for the controlling structure of this community. It wasn't hard to find; it was an estate, designed and built by Chris Norwood, and surrounded by a beautiful coral reef. I asked the doorman, who happened to be Jon Christiansen, where the office of the president was. He replied, "Oh, Bill's office is at the end of the hall." So Bill Dwyer managed to be the president of something, even after all these years. I found Bill, who had just returned from lunch with Attorney General Tim Murphy, Secretary of the Treasury, Dana Guanera and Secretary of the Interior, David Lee. Unfortunately, I didn't see him for long because he had an appointment with world renowned physicist, Brad Kelley. I walked around the government buildings to see if I could find anyone else. I was lucky enough to catch Jim Woods who informed me that as long as I was here, I wouldn't have to worry about any invasions, riots, bombings or fiscal depressions because we had men like Andy Bertolino, Ed Carpenter, Bill Huttunen and Jack Lucas in the armed forces and Phillip Carter was working on "Wall Street."

I stopped for lunch at a French restaurant, "La Cuisine Originelle", owned and operated by Lorraine Platka. Bonnie Lewis and Claire Spiewak were serving and Mark Parillo was washing dishes . . . still?

Continuing on my way, an attractive layout atop a hardened lava mountain interested me. This was the community hospital and I knew that I would find some classmates there. Sure enough, at the reception desk sat Gail Douglas, daydreaming, as usual. She directed me to Dr. Knowlton's waiting room as he was busy with a patient. The decor of the room was particularly impressive; it was no doubt the work of Jim Darcy. Soon Donny came out, followed by Marg Perkins who had come for treatment because she was getting too happy. Another familiar face poked around the corner — it was Lynn Grover, who had been taking notes and filing files.

I walked down a long corridor and at the end of it was a door labeled "Burrill Bacteriological Laboratory." I entered and found Lee, bent over a microscope — she was on the verge of discovering the cure for Hoof and Mouth Disease. One door down, was the nurses lounge. There was Chris Murphy and Sue Oliver . . . lounging. Chief chemist, Tim Reardon, dropped in for a minute but was too busy talking to himself to hear my greeting. Chris recommended that I visit The Recreation Center via Dave Curtis' jet-propelled golf cart. En route, we made an unexpected stop when two bicyclists, Laurie Clinton and Deb Fairweather darted across our path. The Recreation Center was a fairly small building, but it was big enough for Rick Olson and Peter Cross who were practicing shots for the Tournament . . . Kris Bruni and Jeanette "Punky" MacDowell were at the other end of the main gym, leading cheering tryouts. Jack Thibeault was tossing a soccer ball around with Sam Chiancola, and Debbie Garlick was kicking a new type of basketball into its basket.

I left the "Rec" Center and soon came upon The Community Conservatory. What a nice surprise to see that Lisa Gebhardt and Bill O'Connell were presenting their fifteenth annual Concerto in F sharp to the public. In the audience I saw John Cooney and went over to talk to him. He told me of his latest television show, a comedy, in which he starred as a singing politician. Sitting in front of John was Margie Grover, who had recently appeared in a movie called "The Men In My Life." I noticed quite a line standing outside now and all I could do was think back to the high school days when Fred Bornemann stood, patiently, waiting in the lunch line . . .

The concert over, and nearly everyone rounded up and notified, I felt my mission accomplished and headed to the submarine station run by Larry Parsons. My return trip took me through a mountainous region (actually they were cliffs of hardened molten lava) and I immediately knew what that meant — Mike Johnston. There he was, climbing the sheerest face of the highest peak around. David Speck was at the base of the mountain, peacefully strumming his guitar. When the submarine surfaced, I remembered that in all the time I was down there, I hadn't seen Marcia Lewis or Marilyn Newman. I guessed where they might be, so I hitched a ride with Poole's Trucking Service to the beach — Cape Hedge, of course. There they sat, waiting for what I'll never know. I would have gone over and spoken with them, but an earth shattering noise rocked the ground beneath me. It was Alan Bernard . . . and his tuba. My last stop was at the El Producto Cigar Corporation, where I knew I would find Steve Travers. Kathy Hanzlik and Deb Hendrickson were picketing the building and advertising Tiparillos. Inside, I learned of Jim Hickey's recent promotion to Advertising Manager and Brett Lewis' position as production manager. Rick Smith and John McCarthy were around somewhere, no doubt — there they are, on the assembly line . . .
